If you answered yes, will you share what you learned that made you decide n...
Interviewing with WSU was a wonderful experience. It only made me more interested in the program. It was a difficult decision choosing between WSU and the school I am attending currently.
The funding (an assistantship and $1000 fellowship bonus) was just not competitive and the students who were applying for jobs when I came to visit are still without positions
Seeing the location gave me insight into what it would be like to live in Pullman
I heard from the students within the program that the faculty were not reasonable or respectful to the students and that there have been serious problems with the students and their concerns not being heard by leadership.
Program flexibility
A professor in another university better suit my interests.
Program didn't offer funding
I was selected to receive a fellowship at a different institution I had applied to
I was accepted to other graduate schools, as well as I received multiple job offers coming out of school.
No funding for Masters students in the department
Its hard to explain; my family situation--the smallness of Pullman and limited employment opportunities there--were a major issue.
Accepted elsewhere
Funds/Cost
None of the research was what I was looking fod
The main reason that I did not attend WSU is I personally prefer a larger city for my graduate study. In addition to that, though I like the research of WSU on what I have been doing for my undergrad research, I still want to explore more possibilities in other areas.
No assistantship
greater funding at a different instution
Lack of substantial scholarships
I have a background in both sociology and genetics, and I found out Sam Houston State University (where I was also accepted) had recently started its own biosocial research lab
Other school had better reputation.
A job offer that allowed me to support family members
I was accepted into a program that has a larger department.
International Masters students are not considered for financial assistance Quite frankly, WSU was not at the top of my list when I first applied. After meeting with Dr. Jean-Sabin McEwin and the ChemE staff, that changed abruptly. It became one of the top two choices, competitive with my offer to Penn State. Ultimately a decision had to be made, and I chose another school, but with it was an agonizing decision that I still think about often. This effected my decision to enroll in that it made it challenging to pick from other schools after learning how great the WSU program is.

Upon acceptance in to the sport management program, I was told that I would be required to take two undergraduate level courses before I would be allowed to begin graduate level classes. This was disappointing to learn. I did not know that was a situation that could occur as it was never mentioned anywhere in the application process or on the grad school website or the sport management website. I immediately stopped considering the WSU Sport Management program.
The amount of funding offered
My wife was offered a faculty position at another university that I had also applied to. I had been admitted there also.
no
I learned more about the campus I would be at, and that it would have been quite isolated
I am an international student and applied for ms cs program i was given an i-20 indicating full funding but when i contacted the grad school i was told i didnt get funding because of this situation i found it hard to trust and attend wsu
I decided to attend school somewhere else.
There were complications re: my previous Master's degree. I was under the impression that I would not have to repeat master's coursework even though I came in with a MA degree from another discipline.
I got an offer that aligned better with my interests. I was also a bit hesitant about the location.
I received admission to a better program that offers full funding
Admitted to another program
I found other schools have the program I am interested in
More about the specifics of the program
Was awarded a Fulbright to do research in Germany for ten months
State of UNI. location is so important for finding a job.
Heavy in Applied Mathematics, seemed to emphasize less pure mathematics areas
I got a better admission offer
I got accepted to the Colorado school or public health, which was more up my alley - and I didn't want to do my masters and undergrad in the same place without an assistantship when I had other offers Funding seemed like an issue especially for the summer term.
Received other offers.
Lack of financial support.
Was offered funding elsewhere
I was accepted to other universities.
Offered assistantship elsewhere

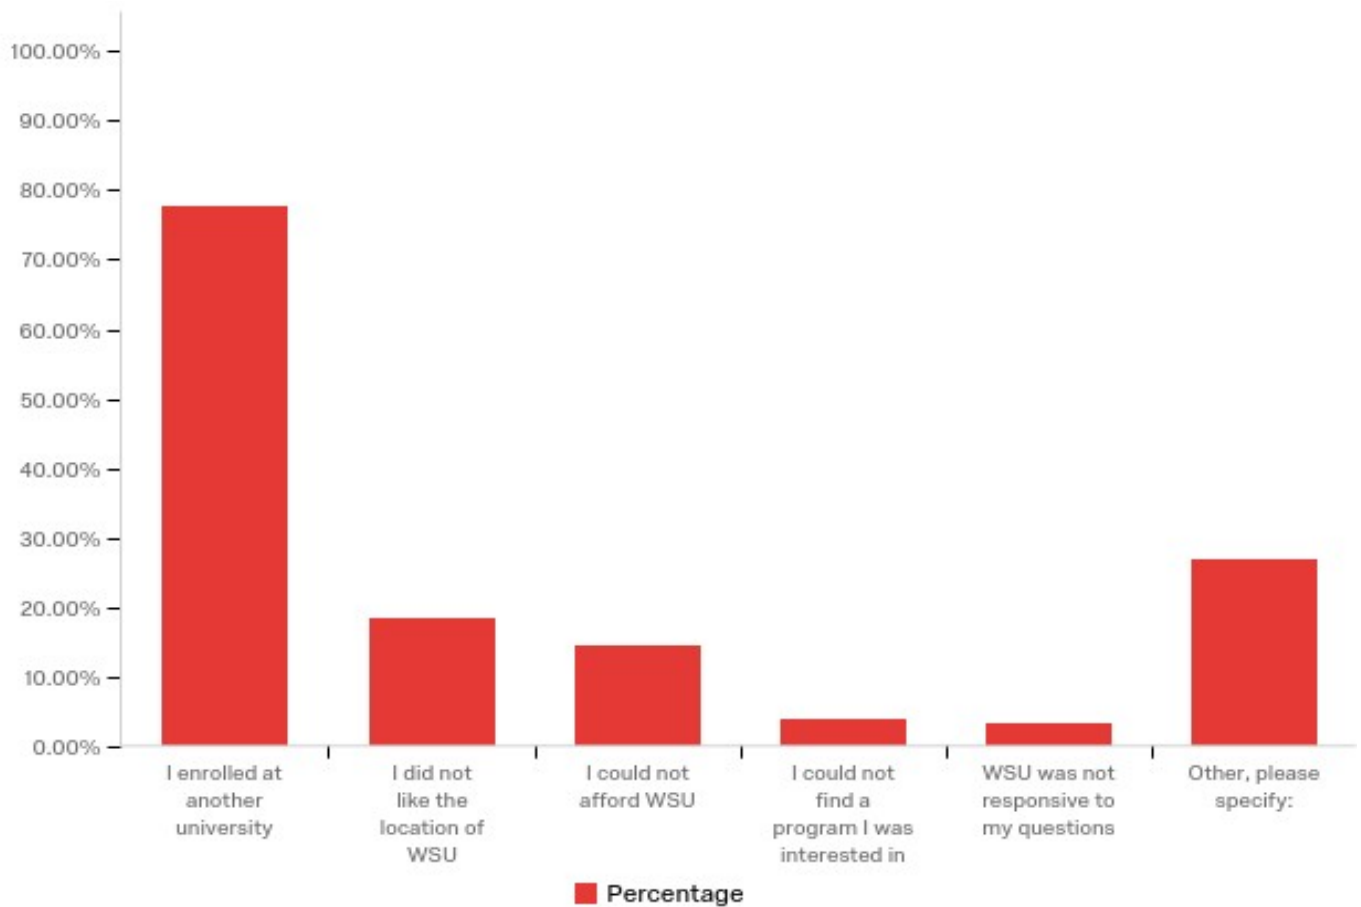

Q10 - Were you offered an assistantship at Washington State University?

#	Answer	%	Count
1	Yes	61.18%	93
2	No	38.82%	59
	Total	100%	152

Q11 - Can you tell us why you did not enroll at Washington State University?(Select all that apply)

Q11_6_TEXT - Other, please specify:

Other, please specify:

Wanted to be closer to home

Funding not competitive

It was recommended I look elsewhere.

Family emergency,deferred for a year

Another University offered a higher financial assistance

I had to apply to graduate assistantships. The program didn't offer TA package

I'm currently working at a consulting civil engineering firm.

I love Victor, Kristin Arola, and others. If I had been a single guy in his 20s, I may have been there. But I am a man in his late 30s with a family. Pullman's limited employment opportunities for my family were the biggest issue. I chose a good school where the city was large enough to offer opportunity.

Working a year.

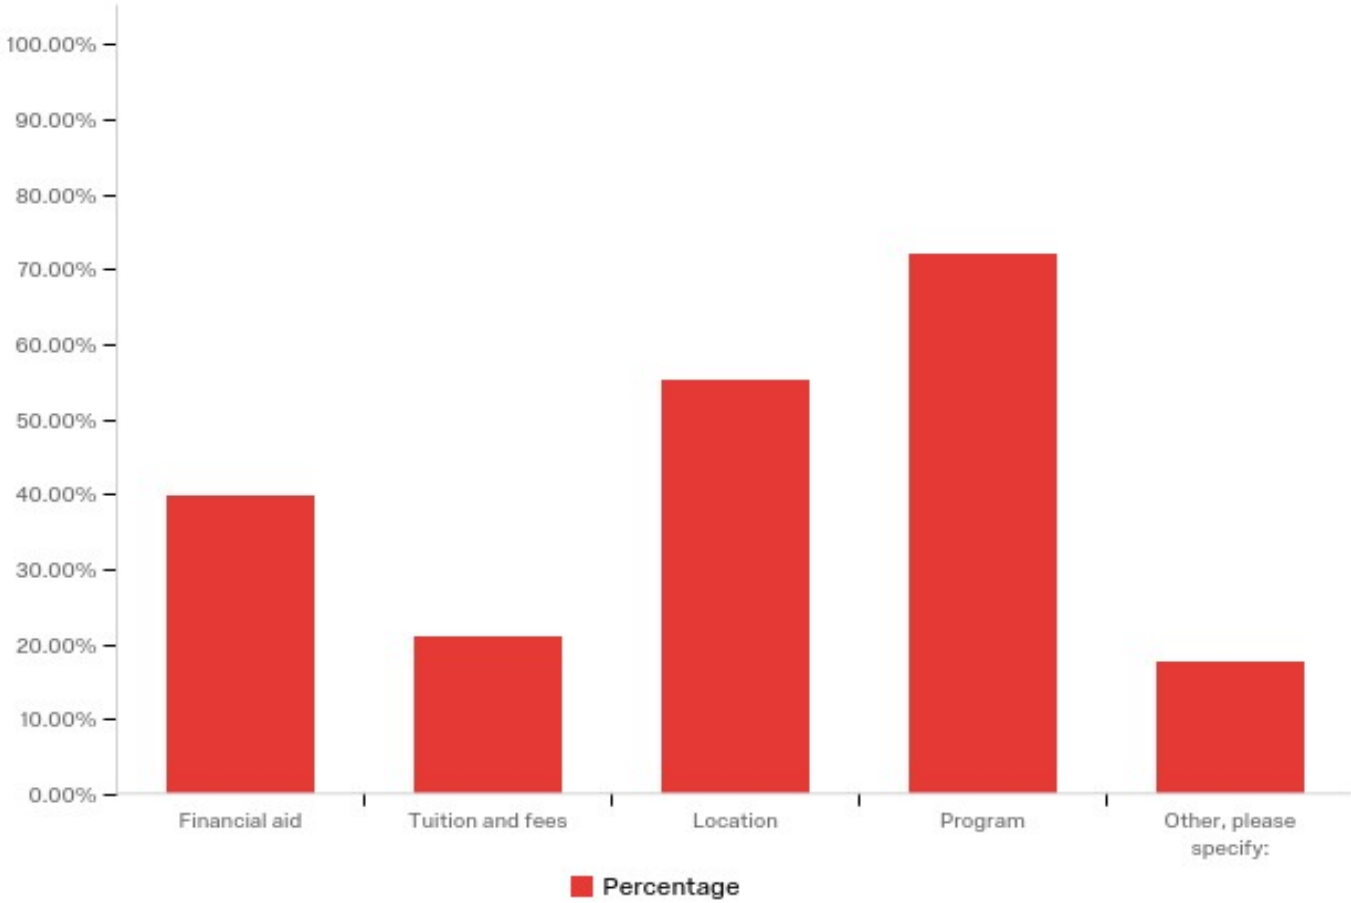

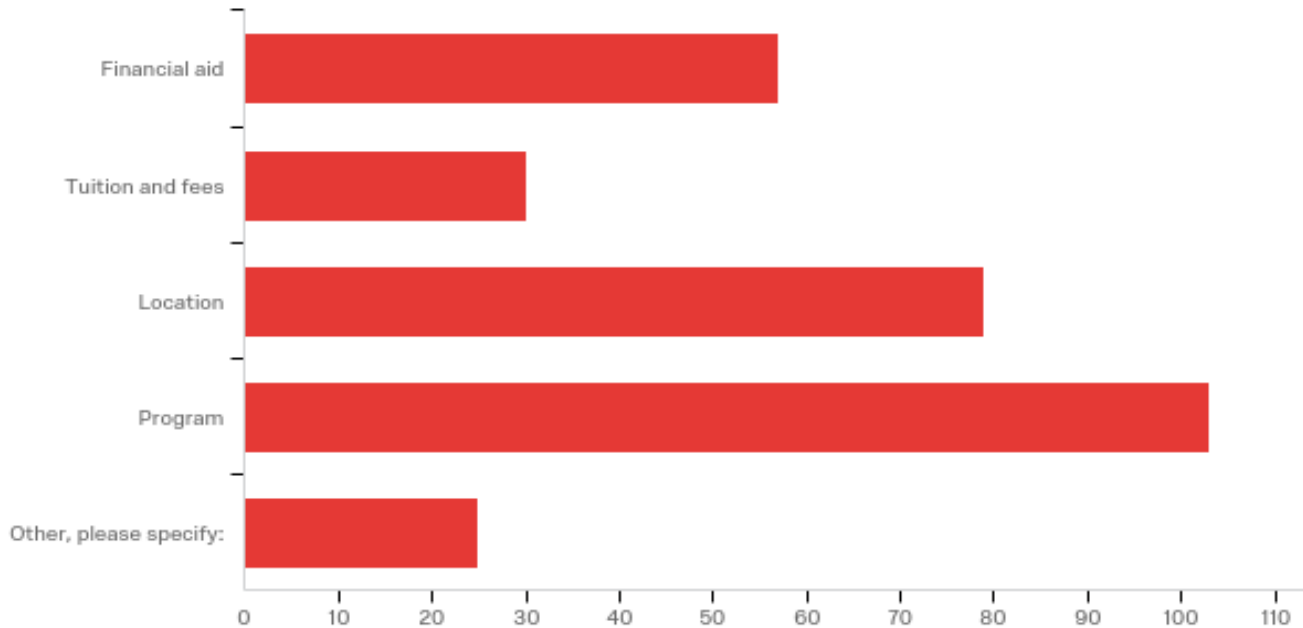

I wanted to attend, but my mother had a brain stroke and I wanted to accept the offer and differ it for one term or year. However it was not possible to differ the offer, so I decided to not attend and apply again. I am really excited about WSU, and I wish it had a deferral option at the time.

Financial offer was less at WSU

Spouse's job change lead me to change the location hence could not join WSU
I already completed my 1st yr of Grad School and had to take a medical leave of absence, not sure of when I could return. Had to apply again to begin my 2nd yr but unfortunately my medical leave is on-going at this time. My hope is to enroll again for the fall of 2017.
There were other options that I felt better suited my research interests visa issues
The stipend is really small. When grad students are on food stamps, WSU should increase their pay. It's only ethical.
I had to help my family
I decided to pursue a different degree program not offered by WSU
I deferred admission for one year for financial reasons
Upon acceptance in to the sport management program, I was told that I would be required to take two undergraduate level courses before I would be allowed to begin graduate level classes. This was disappointing to learn. I did not know that was a situation that could occur as it was never mentioned anywhere in the application process or on the grad school website or the sport management website. I immediately stopped considering the WSU Sport Management program.
I joined the Peace Corps instead of going to graduate school straight out of my undergraduate.
See above. My wife was offered a faculty position at another university, where I was also admitted as a student.
I did not think it would be a good fit (too isolated at the wine campus)
I was not offered any funding
WSU was very slow processing paperwork and answering questions.
The program was not flexible enough to accomidate my academic history. I already had an MA but the program wanted me to repeat coursework equivilent to earning an MA during my PhD studies.
I made changes in my bachelor degree plan that delayed my graduation for one more semester. Therefore, i could not attend WSU for the semester I was admitted in because I have not graduated yet.
I visited three different institutions and I didn't feel like the department at WSU was where I belonged. Was a great program but it didn't feel like as good of a fit as a different institution did.
Other school was more affordable and wsu does not participate in wiche
I was offered a fellowship and substantially more money at another school
Fulbright Scholarship from U.S. Department of State
I would have applied to WSU, but my current establishment was closer to me. You have a great program!
Lack of funding
Didn't find an assistantship
I opted to study public health
I could not stay in Pullman for the two years required to complete the program
The facility member I wanted to work with was not responsive
Deferred application to later year for personal reasons
I was interested in a non-traditional PhD program that the University of Montana offered.

Better options for my spouse at other location

Q12 - If you applied to another university, what was your decision based upon?(Select all that apply)

Other, please specify:

Other, please specify:
slightly better research alignment
None
Research interests
attended there for undergrad
department had slightly more established researchers in the exact field I wished to work in, also PI had more NIH funding
Grants
Reputation
People
Research interest fittedness.
Other institution had a much better package for graduate students. I love WSU's faculty, and the program is nice. I just think it needs to be more competitive.
My assistantship at WSU was based on TAing, and combining TAing with a full course load and dissertation work had me worried for my time management. The university I enrolled in offered me a fellowship so I could work and do classes and then TA when I feel I have the time needed to dedicate to it.
The University of Iowa contacted me first and had a deadline of before WSU even told me I had been accepted
My current university had a more personable staff and better reputation
See above.
Campus life.
Research interests better aligned with a faculty member at another school.
Familiarity with campus and faculty
Fellowship, Ranking
Gut feeling
and Assistantship
Ability to complete the program remotely via online classes
Seemed like a better fit for my family
GA
Dual career relationship

I would have liked there to have been another time that I could have come out and visited with financial aid. The only weekend you were bringing people out was a specific weekend which I could not attend, and thus, I could never make a definitive decision if I wanted to be there.

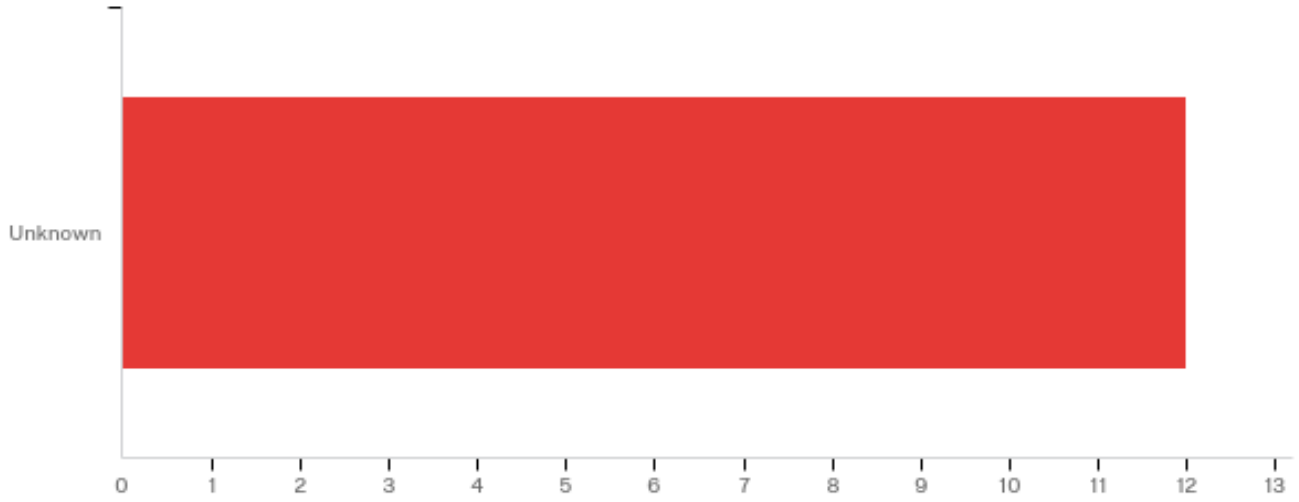

I have sent several email regarding to my admission material such as admission brochure but never get any response.

Have a way for prospective students to talk to current students
Not be so far from civilization
quicker turnaround
WSU should have provided more information about the cost of attendance
Sent my acceptance letter sooner than a week before needing to reply back
Camus visit to meet faculty, current graduate students, familiarize myself with campus and city n/a
I would have liked a complimentary visit
